OVERVIEW

There are developments on the communications front at the CLSA. Thanks mainly to the magnificent efforts of the multi-talented Angela Lee, who was also a graduate student representative from 2017-19, we have just gone live with a new website:

acds-clsa.com

The old website (acds-clsa.org) has not been disabled, but we will no longer post new material to it. We anticipate taking it offline in a few months. (Email addresses will continue to use the .org suffix.) The new website not only has a more up-to-date look and is easier to use behind the scenes, but it uses Square, rather than PayPal, which will hopefully be an improvement on several fronts at once. There is also a portal where documents for the membership may at times be placed, such as agendas for meetings.

As well, I have been doing the Association's communications, including editing this bulletin, on a provisional basis since the winter of 2018 but am about to step away from this role. New energies will animate the next bulletin.

But before I go, I want to use this platform to thank the CLSA for renaming our book prize the W. Wesley Pue prize, in Wes's memory.

Best wishes,

Lyndsay Campbell

APERÇU

Il y a des développements sur le front des communications à l'ACDS. Grâce aux efforts remarquables de la talentueuse Angela Lee, également représentante des étudiant-e-s aux cycles supérieurs de 2017 à 2019, nous venons de mettre en ligne un nouveau site Web:

acds-clsa.com

L'ancien site Web (acds-clsa.org) n'a pas été désactivé, mais nous n'y publierons plus de nouveau matériel. Nous prévoyons de le déconnecter dans quelques mois. (Les adresses courriel continueront d'utiliser le suffixe .org.) Le nouveau site Web a non seulement une apparence plus moderne et est plus facile à utiliser en coulisse, mais il utilise Square, plutôt que PayPal, ce qui, espérons-le, constituera une amélioration sur plusieurs fronts à la fois. Il existe également un portail sur lequel des documents pour les membres peuvent parfois être placés, tels que des ordres du jour pour des réunions.

De plus, je suis responsable des communications de l'Association, notamment la rédaction de ce bulletin, à titre provisoire depuis l'hiver 2018, mais je suis sur le point de me retirer de ce rôle. Les nouvelles énergies animeront le prochain bulletin.

Mais avant de quitter ce rôle, je souhaite utiliser cette plate-forme pour remercier l'ACDS d'avoir renommé notre prix du livre "le prix W. Wesley Pue," à la mémoire de Wes.

Meilleurs vœux,

Lyndsay Campbell

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dear Members:

I trust that everyone is settling into the fall semester!

I am pleased to report that we had a very successful annual conference at the Allard School of Law on the preternaturally beautiful University of British Columbia campus on June 3-5. Highlights included an overlap day with the Canadian Association of Law Teachers as well as a joint banquet (no one will soon forget dancing to the tunes spun by CALT President and DJ David Wiseman!). And we were fortunate to hear from three distinguished plenary speakers:

Dr. Elizabeth Mancke (CRC Atlantic Canada Studies, UNB): The Royal Proclamation of 1763 in the Long Eighteenth Century: Rethinking Imperial Sovereignty and Indigenous Relations

Prof. James (Sákéj) Youngblood Henderson (Native Law Centre, U of S): Constitutional Reconciliation: Aboriginal and Treaty Rights and the Public Interest

Prof. Jeremy Webber (UVic): Law of the Feast Hall, Law of the Courts: Bringing State and Non-State into Conversation in the Classroom

All three speakers presented thought-provoking work on various aspects of Canadian history and legal education in response to the Truth and Reconciliation Calls to Action. For the first time, we recorded the livestreamed keynote addresses; please inquire (info@acds-clsa.org) if you would like access to any of them.

As I write, I am anticipating an excellent CLSA Fall symposium at the University of Ottawa on October 18-19: "Law and Learning in an Era of Partnerships." The symposium will be an excellent opportunity to bring together law and society scholars to engage in one another's research on a more personal level. Board member Joao Velloso has organized a fantastic program featuring several prominent law and society scholars such as Constance Backhouse (Ottawa), Annie Bunting (York), Josephine Savarese (STU), Thomas McMorrow (UOIT) and many, many others. Other highlights include a graduate student work about pursuing careers outside of academia. The program can be found here: <https://www.acds-clsa.com/upcoming-meeting.html>.

The conference theme will give us an opportunity to reflect on the continuing and profound influence of the 1983 Arthurs Report on Law and Learning. The contributors to the report, the Consultative Group on Research and Education in Law, included notable educators and administrators such Dean F. Murray Fraser (UVic), Professor John C. Courtney (Saskatchewan), Dean Dale Gibson (Manitoba), Professor Douglas Hay (Osgoode), Professor William Lederman (Queen's) and Principal David Johnston (McGill), Dean Ed Veitch (UNB), and many others. Chaired by the inimitable Harry Arthurs, the group produced a collaborative and ground-breaking report that changed the nature of legal education throughout the country. For our symposium, Professor Arthurs has written a discussion paper for our consideration and debate entitled "Will Socio-Legal Scholars ever Make Partner?" I hope (and fully expect) that Professor Arthurs's ideas will compel us all to deeply think about the evolution and current direction of Canadian legal education and socio-legal scholarship. I look forward to our conversation.

I would like to extend my thanks to Joane Martel and Marie-Ève Sylvestre for their work as editors-in-chief of the Canadian Journal of Law and Society and to the Journal's outgoing editorial assistants Robyn A. Pepin and Alexandre Audesse. The Journal is grateful to Dominique Bernier for her willingness to join Eric Reiter and Jula

Hughes as an editor-in-chief, and to Justine Monette-Tremblay for taking over as editorial assistant.

Finally, I would like to express our heart-felt gratitude to former CLSA President Lyndsay Campbell. After completing her term as President, she continued her service to the CLSA as Communications Officer and Bulletin Editor. She has been busy working on our new website with graduate student representative Angela Lee. Please check out our new website at <https://www.acds-clsa.com/>. Thank you for your dedication, Lyndsay!

Your CLSA Board is eager to serve your interests and we continually strive to promote socio-legal, law and society and interdisciplinary scholarship. Please feel free to contact me anytime.

All the best!

RAPPORT DE LA PRÉSIDENTE

Chers membres / Chères membres,

J'espère que le début de la session d'automne se déroule bien pour chacun d'entre vous.

La réunion générale annuelle, qui a eu lieu à l'École de droit Allard sur le campus de la très belle Université de Colombie-Britannique du 3 au 5 juin dernier, a été un franc succès. Parmi les faits saillants, on compte une journée de chevauchement avec la conférence de l'Association canadienne des professeurs de droit ainsi qu'un banquet conjoint (nous ne sommes pas prêts d'oublier la soirée dansante sur la musique choisie par le président de l'ACPD et dj à ses heures, David Wiseman!). Nous avons eu la chance d'entendre trois distingués invités :

Dr Elizabeth Mancke (CRC en études sur le Canada atlantique, UNB) : la Proclamation royale de 1763 durant le long dix-huitième siècle : repenser les relations entre la souveraineté impériale et les Autochtones

Professeur James (Sákéj) Youngblood Henderson (Centre de droit autochtone, U de S) : La réconciliation constitutionnelle : les Autochtones, les droits issus de traités et l'intérêt public

Professeur Jeremy Webber (UVic) : Le droit des salles de célébration et le droit des cours : l'État et le non-État dans la conversation en classe

En réponse à l'appel à l'action de la Commission de vérité et réconciliation, les trois invités ont présenté des travaux novateurs sur divers aspects de l'histoire du Canada et de l'enseignement du droit. Pour la première fois, nous avons enregistré les discours principaux diffusés en direct; veuillez vous informer (info@acds-clsa.org) si vous souhaitez avoir accès à l'un d'entre eux.

Au moment d'écrire, j'attends un excellent colloque d'automne de l'ACDS qui se déroulera à l'Université d'Ottawa les 18 et 19 octobre : « Le droit et le savoir à l'ère des partenariats. » Le Symposium est une excellente occasion de réunir les chercheurs en droit et société et de favoriser les échanges. Joao Velloso, membre du comité d'administration, a préparé un superbe programme comportant plusieurs éminents chercheurs en droit et société tels Constance Backhouse (Université d'Ottawa), Annie Bunting (Université de York), Josephine Savarese (Université St-Thomas), Thomas McMorrow (Institut universitaire de technologie de l'Ontario) et plusieurs autres. Par ailleurs, on compte également des travaux de recherche d'étudiants diplômés sur les carrières en dehors du monde universitaire. Le programme se trouve ici : www.acds-clsa.com/upcoming-meeting.

Le thème de la conférence sera l'occasion de réfléchir à l'influence profonde du rapport Arthurs sur le droit et le savoir (1983). Le groupe consultatif sur la recherche et l'éducation juridique, qui a préparé ce rapport, comportait d'éminents pédagogues et administrateurs tels le doyen F. Murray Fraser (Université de Victoria), le professeur John C. Courtney (Université de la Saskatchewan), Dean Dale Gibson (Université du Manitoba), le professeur Douglas Hay (Université Osgoode), le professeur William Lederman (Université Queen's), le principal David Johnston (Université McGill), le doyen Ed Veitch (Université du Nouveau-Brunswick) et bien d'autres. Présidé par l'inimitable Harry Arthurs, le groupe a produit un rapport fondateur qui a changé la nature de l'enseignement juridique au pays. À l'occasion du colloque, le professeur Arthurs a rédigé un texte incitant à la discussion et au débat intitulé « Les universitaires du domaine sociojuridique deviendront associés un jour? » Je suis certaine que les idées du professeur Arthurs favoriseront une réflexion profonde sur l'évolution et l'orientation actuelle de l'enseignement du droit et les études sociojuridiques. Au plaisir d'échanger avec vous!

Mes remerciements vont également à Joane Martel et Marie-Ève Sylvestre pour leur travail en tant que rédactrices en chef de la Revue canadienne droit et société, ainsi qu'aux assistantes à la rédaction sortantes de la Revue, Robyn A. Pepin et Alexandre Audesse. La Revue remercie Dominique Bernier de sa volonté de se joindre à Eric Reiter et Jula Hughes en tant que rédactrice en chef, et à Justine Monette-Tremblay d'avoir assumé les fonctions d'adjointe à la rédaction.

Enfin, j'aimerais exprimer toute ma gratitude à l'ancienne présidente de l'ACDS, Lyndsay Campbell. Après son mandat de présidente, elle est demeurée au service de l'ACDS en tant qu'agente des communications et éditrice du bulletin d'information. Elle a d'ailleurs été très occupée à l'élaboration du nouveau site Web avec la précieuse aide de la représentante des étudiant-e-s aux cycles supérieurs, Angela Lee. Consultez le nouveau site ici : www.acds-clsa.com. Merci à Lyndsay pour son dévouement!

Fier de servir vos intérêts, le conseil d'administration de l'ACDS fait la promotion des études sociojuridiques, des études en droit et société et des études interdisciplinaires. N'hésitez pas à communiquer avec moi en tout temps.

Au plaisir!

GRADUATE STUDENT MESSAGE / MESSAGE AUX ÉTUDIANT-E-S AUX CYCLES SUPÉRIEURS

Dear ACDS/CLSA Graduate Students,

We hope your fall semester is off to a great start and that you are looking forward to exciting projects!

“Law & Learning in an Era of Partnerships” Conference – October 17-19th

We hope to meet many of you at the “Law & Learning in an Era of Partnerships” Conference, to be held at the University of Ottawa, from October 17th to the 19th! The conference is free to attend. Please register here: <https://www.eventbrite.ca/e/law-learning-in-an-era-of-partnerships-registration-68458576445>. We are excited to be holding a special graduate student event on Thursday, October 17th, from 5 to 7pm, about alternative careers to academia. Our panelists come from different backgrounds and work in varied environments, so this promises to be an informative event about professional development outside of professorship. The panel will be followed by our social event, at Browns Socialhouse, an accessible venue with gender-neutral bathrooms.

Roderick A. Macdonald Graduate Student Essay Prize

The ACDS/CLSA will hold the essay competition for the Roderick A. Macdonald Graduate Student Essay Prize once again in 2020. The entries will be due this spring, at a date to be announced this winter. This prize is awarded annually for the best essay on a topic in law and society written by a graduate student at a Canadian University. Previous winners are listed on the CLSA/ACDS website. The winning submission receives feedback from the Prize Committee, and promotion through ACDS/CLSA channels. Therefore, keep this in mind if you write a paper this academic year that will not be published, or under consideration for publication, at the time of submission for the prize!

Comments, questions, suggestions?

Please feel welcome in emailing us comments, questions, or suggestions about how we can further represent your interests within the ACDS/CLSA as your Graduate Student Representatives, at acdsgradsclsa@gmail.com. You can follow us on our Twitter page @acds_clsa.

We look forward to seeing you in Ottawa!

Elise Wohlbold and Sabrina Tremblay-Huet
ACDS/CLSA Graduate Student Representatives

Chers étudiants, chères étudiantes aux cycles supérieurs de l'ACDS,

Nous espérons que votre session d'automne se déroule bien, et que vous avez plusieurs projets excitants de prévus!

Colloque « Le droit et le savoir à l'ère des partenariats » - 17 au 19 octobre

Nous espérons voir plusieurs d'entre vous au colloque « Le droit et le savoir à l'ère des partenariats », qui aura lieu à l'Université d'Ottawa, du 17 au 19 octobre! L'admission au colloque est gratuite. Veuillez vous y inscrire ici : <https://www.eventbrite.ca/e/law-learning-in-an-era-of-partnerships-registration-68458576445>. Nous sommes très heureuses d'y tenir un évènement spécial destiné aux étudiant-e-s aux cycles supérieurs le jeudi 17 octobre, de 17h à 19h, sur les carrières alternatives au monde universitaire. Nos panélistes sont issu-e-s de milieux différents et travaillent au sein d'environnements variés, promettant un évènement très informatif sur le développement professionnel hors du professorat. Ce panel sera suivi de notre évènement social, au Browns Socialhouse, un bar accessible avec des salles de bain mixtes.

Prix Roderick A. Macdonald pour un essai étudiant

L'ACDS offrira cette année encore le Prix Roderick A. Macdonald récompensant un-e étudiant-e aux cycles supérieurs pour un essai. Les soumissions seront à remettre ce printemps, à une date qui sera annoncée cet hiver. Le prix est accordé sur une base annuelle pour un essai en droit et société rédigé par un-e étudiant-e aux cycles supérieurs d'une université canadienne. Les personnes ayant remporté ce prix au cours des années précédentes sont énumérées sur le site de l'ACDS. La soumission gagnante recevra de la rétroaction détaillée du comité du prix, ainsi qu'une promotion de celle-ci à travers le réseau de l'ACDS. Ainsi, gardez cela en tête si vous rédigez un essai en cette année universitaire, qui ne sera pas encore publié ou soumis pour publication à la date de soumission des essais!

Commentaires, questions, suggestions?

Vous êtes toujours les bienvenu-e-s à nous écrire pour tout commentaire, question ou suggestion portant sur la façon dont nous pouvons le mieux représenter vos intérêts au sein de l'ACDS en tant que vos représentantes des étudiant-e-s aux cycles supérieurs, à l'adresse courriel : acdsgradsclsa@gmail.com. Vous pouvez également suivre notre compte Twitter : @acds_clsa.

Au plaisir de vous voir à Ottawa!

Canadian Law and Society Association annual meeting / Colloque annuel de l’Association canadienne droit et société

[La version française apparaît ci-dessous.]

The annual meeting of the Canadian Law and Society Association will take place June 3-5, 2020 at Western University, on the traditional lands of the Anishinaabek, Haudenosaunee, Lūnaapéewak, and Attawandaron nations. This location has a complex history of Indigenous-non-Indigenous relations and is not far from where some of the earliest Black refugees arrived after fleeing slavery in the United States. The Canadian Law and Society Association Program Committee joins with Congress in adopting as its theme this year: “Bridging Divides: Confronting Colonialism and Anti-Black Racism.” Congress describes the theme as follows:

The river’s Forks downstream from the Western University campus are a traditional meeting place where two tributaries converge, a place to come together to listen to the land and water, to build resilience as we confront what divides us. Congress 2020 will encourage multidisciplinary engagement under the broad concept of bridging divides, while specifically emphasizing the dispossession of Indigenous peoples and the enslavement of Africans in the [so-called] new world. Settler colonialism, as part of a broader imperial project, erases Indigenous peoples by appropriating land and delegitimizing traditional knowledge, and dehumanizes Black people, subjecting them to the tropes of everyday anti-Black racism. As we come together to confront white privilege and white supremacy, and examine experiences shared by Indigenous peoples and African Canadians, we also invite our community to reflect critically on social, ethnic, political and epistemological divisions more broadly, forming a future vision that bridges divides between divergent ways of knowing and navigating our world.

The Program Committee invites law and society scholars to present research that examines the ways in which racism and settler colonialism can be both operationalized and challenged through law. We encourage contributions that explore intersectional socio-legal analyses including Indigenous laws. We also welcome submissions on other issues including law and religion, crime and punishment, legal history, or other areas of interest.

The Canadian Association of Law Teachers annual conference will be held June 1-3. The programs for both conferences will overlap on June 3rd and will be coordinated to encourage full participation and exchange by attendees at both conferences.

The Program Committee encourages proposals for organized panels. Panels should be comprised of three or four related papers including a suggested chair. A panel proposal of no more than 250 words should be submitted, in addition to an abstract of no more than 250 words for each paper. A one-page curriculum vitae should also be submitted for each presenter. These documents should be submitted in a single PDF document.

Proposals for individual papers are also welcome. Please submit an abstract of no more than 250 words and a one-page curriculum vitae. These documents should be submitted in a single PDF document.

Please send all submissions to clsalondon2020@acds-clsa.org no later than November 25, 2019. No late submissions will be considered. Only one paper proposal per individual will be accepted. The organizers reserve the right to request additional information and modify panels if necessary. Please note that all presenters must be members of the CLSA at the time of the conference. All presenters must register for Congress and the CLSA conference.

Generally, presenters must attend the conference and present in person. However, we will also plan for a very limited number of remote presentations via Skype or another video conference service. Those proposing a remote presentation will be asked to provide a justification for presenting remotely.

Le colloque 2020 de l'Association canadienne droit et société se déroulera du 3 au 5 juin 2020 à l'Université Western sur les terres ancestrales des peuples Anishinaabek, Haudenosaunee, Lūnaapéewak, et Attawandaron. Ce lieu où s'est déroulée une histoire des plus complexes entre des acteurs autochtones et non-Autochtones se situe tout près de l'endroit où sont venus les premiers réfugiés noirs fuyant l'esclavagisme américain. L'Association canadienne droit et société se joint au Congrès des sciences humaines et adopte le thème de cette année : « Bâtir des passerelles : combattre le colonialisme et le racisme anti-Noirs. » Le Congrès décrit ce thème comme suit :

Les fourches de la rivière, en aval du campus de l'Université Western, sont un lieu de rencontre traditionnel où convergent deux affluents, un endroit où aller écouter la terre et l'eau, et renforcer la résilience malgré nos divergences. Le Congrès 2020 encouragera la mobilisation multidisciplinaire permettant de bâtir des passerelles, en mettant l'accent sur l'expropriation des peuples autochtones et l'esclavage des Africains dans le Nouveau Monde. Le colonialisme de peuplement, dans le cadre d'un projet impérialiste à grande échelle, efface les Autochtones en s'appropriant leurs terres et en rejetant la légitimité du savoir traditionnel. Il déshumanise les Noirs en les soumettant à toutes les facettes du racisme anti-Noirs. Ce rassemblement sera l'occasion de reconnaître les priviléges accordés aux Blancs et la suprématie blanche, et de se pencher sur les expériences des Autochtones et des Afro-Canadiens. Nous invitons aussi la collectivité à jeter un regard critique sur les divisions sociales, ethniques, politiques et épistémologiques dans leur ensemble, de manière à imaginer un avenir où des passerelles relient différents savoirs et différentes visions du monde.

Le comité invite les chercheur-se-s en droit et société à présenter leurs travaux de recherche étayant comment le racisme et le colonialisme des premiers colons ont pu à la fois être mis en œuvre par le droit et remis en question par le droit également. Les contributions comportant des analyses interdisciplinaires, y compris le droit autochtone, sont les bienvenues. Les contributions peuvent également porter sur le thème de la conférence ainsi que sur d'autres questions sociojuridiques, notamment le droit et la religion, les crimes et les peines, l'histoire du droit ou tout autre enjeu d'intérêt.

Le colloque annuel de l'Association canadienne des professeurs de droit se déroulera du 1^{er} au 3 juin. Les programmes des deux événements se chevauchent le 3 juin et seront coordonnés en vue de favoriser la participation aux deux événements et de multiplier les occasions d'échanges.

Le Comité de programme encourage la soumission de propositions de panels complets. Les panels doivent être constitués de trois ou quatre travaux propositions connexes et un-e président-e de panel devrait également être proposé. Une résumé de panel ne dépassant pas 250 mots, en plus d'un résumé ne dépassant pas 250 mots pour chaque participant-e au panel, doivent être soumis. Un curriculum vitae d'une page doit également être joint pour chaque présentateur-ice. Ces documents doivent être soumis dans un seul document PDF.

Veuillez envoyer toutes les soumissions à l'adresse courriel clsalondon2020@acds-clsa.org au plus tard le 25 novembre 2019. Aucune soumission tardive ne sera considérée. Le Comité de programme n'acceptera qu'une proposition de communication par personne. Les organisateur-ice-s se réservent le droit de demander des informations supplémentaires et de modifier les panels proposés si nécessaire. Veuillez noter que tous les présentateur-ice-s doivent être membres de l'ACDS au moment du colloque. Tous les présentateur-ice-s doivent s'inscrire à la fois au Congrès et au colloque de l'ACDS.

Règle générale, les présentateur-ice-s doivent assister au colloque et faire leur présentation en personne. Toutefois, un nombre très limité de présentations seront effectuées via Skype ou autre service de vidéoconférence. Les présentateur-ice-s désireux de faire une présentation à distance devront fournir une justification.

Beyond Boundaries: 15th Annual Communication Graduate Caucus Conference February 27-28, 2020 |
Carleton University, Ottawa, ON

What are we bound by? Whether physical, social, cultural, geographical, or political confinements, we routinely encounter boundaries which communication and media cut and cross. While it is a truism that culture and communication inevitably overlap, critical approaches to media studies should interrogate the erosion of clear boundaries between historically demarcated categories, such as: local/global, nature/culture, private/public, and human/non-human. The study of communication and media requires that we confront boundaries – those related to academic disciplines, methodological approaches, and objects of analysis – and question their significance in how we understand our discipline. Are there breaking points, transgressions, leakages, or liminality along the edges of communities or objects? How do we move beyond them?

Beyond Boundaries, the 15th annual Communication Graduate Caucus (CGC) Conference, invites explorations of the ways that communication and media cross social, political, technical, and cultural boundaries. Communication studies often grafts on, collaborates, and cross-pollinates, and we thus encourage research that steps outside or extends research domains and practices. We are particularly interested in insights which examine boundaries as sites of struggle and encourage submissions that focus on practices, communities, objects, bodies of knowledge, or activities that are often ignored, violated, invisible, or deleted due to the presence of boundaries.

The CGC welcomes proposals for 15-minute individual presentations, research-creation (research that includes creative production, artistic experimentation, and innovation in understanding and mobilizing knowledge). We also welcome proposals for pre-constituted panels composed of 3-4 speakers for a total of 60 minutes of presentation time. Topics and themes may include but are not limited to:

- Research that crosses disciplinary boundaries (e.g. gender studies and media, science communication, health communication, law and communication)
- Work that expands traditional theoretical or methodological boundaries (e.g., art-based research, sound studies, participant action research, media archeology)
- The role of media in redefining epistemological boundaries (e.g. fantasy versus reality, information versus knowledge, data versus experience, facts versus fiction)
- Research that interrogates themes of power and control (e.g. who gets to set boundaries? For whom? Under what circumstances?)
- Critical examinations of socio-technical phenomena that obscure and shift social and cultural boundaries (e.g. surveillance, privacy, Big Data, the Internet of Things, artificial intelligence, algorithms)
- Discourses of boundary formation, legitimization, and maintenance of boundaries (terms of service, user agreements, laws, policies, guidelines)
- Social movements, activism, and resistance at the margins
- Identity construction and performativity
- Environmental effects of moving beyond ecological limitations

Beyond Boundaries is pleased to announce our keynote speaker, Dr. Bobby Benedicto, Assistant Professor in the Department of Art History and Communication Studies at McGill University. Dr. Benedicto's research re-examines long-held associations at the intersections of queer theory, critical race theory, urban studies, and theories of death and temporality. His current book project "Fatal Sex" highlights cross-disciplinary work that breaks down boundaries by connecting an archive of aesthetic and cultural practices to stage an encounter between psychoanalytic and necropolitical accounts.

All submissions should include a 250-word abstract with the full name, current academic affiliation, biography of 50-100 words, and contact information of the individual presenters. Panel proposals should contain abstracts for the panel and for each individual paper (250 words each). It should also include a brief description of the topic's relevance to the conference theme. Research-creation proposals should outline technical requirements needed for their presentation. Please fill out the submission form at <https://forms.gle/7uqYUt895ELPYffQA> by December 15, 2019.

The CGC Conference provides graduate students and emerging scholars from across the social sciences and humanities an opportunity to present their work, receive feedback, participate in professional development, and network with leading experts in their fields. Upon acceptance, students are encouraged to submit their full paper for the Canadian Journal of Communication Student Paper Prize by January 15, 2020.

We look forward to reading your submissions!

BOOKS AND SPECIAL ISSUES / LIVRES ET NUMÉROS SPÉCIAUX

Shauna Labman, Crossing Law's Border: Canada's Refugee Resettlement Program (Vancouver: UBC Press, 2019).

The UN Refugee Agency considers resettlement – the selection and transfer of refugees from the state where they seek asylum to another state – to be a tool of refugee protection and an expression of international burden sharing. Resettlement is voluntary and ad hoc, and Canada is one of three leading resettlement countries in the world.

In this account of Canada's resettlement program from the Indochinese crisis of the 1970s to the Syrian crisis of the 2010s, Shauna Labman explores how rights, responsibilities, and obligations intersect in the absence of a legal scheme for refugee resettlement. She asks: How does law influence the voluntary act of resettlement, and how does resettlement affect asylum policy? She reveals that the core concept of refugee protection, non-refoulement, which prevents countries from turning away asylum-seekers, can be compromised by resettlement, both by the resettlement selection process and the influence of resettlement practices on in-country asylum.

This pathbreaking look at the interplay between resettlement and asylum in one of the world's most successful refugee protection programs shows that resettlement can either complement or complicate in-country asylum claims at a time when refugee crises and fear of outsiders are causing countries to close their borders to asylum-seekers around the world.

This book will appeal not only to scholars in law, sociology, and refugee and migration studies but also to general readers and policy makers interested in refugees and resettlement programs.

Heather McLeod Kilmurray, Angela Lee & Nathalie Chalifour, eds., Food Law and Policy in Canada (Toronto: Carswell, 2019).

While “food law” has not yet crystallized into a systematic field of study in Canada, rapid unification of this field has recently occurred in the USA, the UK, and the EU, among other jurisdictions. What can we learn from them? What is unique about Canadian physical, cultural and social realities that require different approaches to the study of food law and policy in Canada? What is the most effective path to developing coherent and effective food laws that not only serve Canada, but also provide an inspirational model for other countries and enhance international collaboration on creating sustainable and just food systems.

This book, the first of its kind in the Canadian context, includes chapters from leading experts in the various sub-fields of food law and policy in Canada. The book has two parts. The chapters in Part I, “Foundations of Food Law and Policy in Canada”, provide a broad overview of content pertaining to the essential laws, regulations, and policies relevant to food law and policy in Canada, including issues like food safety, food labelling, and food and sustainability. Part II offers “Critical Perspectives on Food Law and Policy in Canada” on issues like emerging food technologies, animal rights, and food and gender, among others. As such, this book provides the basics for beginners, but also advanced critical and innovative thinking on emerging issues in this burgeoning field of law.

Sara Ross, Law and Intangible Cultural Heritage in the City. New York: Routledge, 2019.

With disappearing music venues, and arts and culture communities at constant risk of displacement in our urban centers, the preservation of intangible cultural heritage is of growing concern to global cities.

This book addresses the role and protection of intangible cultural heritage in the urban context. Using the methodology of Urban Legal Anthropology, the author provides an ethnographic account of the civic effort of Toronto to become a Music City from 2014-18 in the context of redevelopment and gentrification pressures. Through this, the book elucidates the problems cities like Toronto have in equitably protecting intangible cultural heritage and what can be done to address this. It also evaluates the engagement that Toronto and other cities have had with international legal frameworks intended to protect intangible cultural heritage, as well as potential counterhegemonic uses of hegemonic legal tools. Understanding urban intangible cultural heritage and the communities of people who produce it is of importance to a range of actors, from urban developers looking to formulate livable and sustainable neighbourhoods, to city leaders looking for ways in which their city can flourish, to scholars and individuals concerned with equitability and the right to the city. This book is the beginning of a conservation about what is important for us to protect in the city for future generations beyond built structures, and the role of intangible cultural heritage in the creation of full and happy lives.

Toronto: University of Toronto, 2019.

Making Surveillance States: Transnational Histories opens up new and exciting perspectives on how systems of state surveillance developed over the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Taking a transnational approach, the book challenges us to rethink the presumed novelty of contemporary surveillance practices, while developing critical analyses of the ways in which state surveillance has profoundly shaped the emergence of contemporary societies.

Contributors engage with a range of surveillance practices, including medical and disease surveillance, systems of documentation and identification, and policing and security. These approaches enable us to understand how surveillance has underpinned the emergence of modern states; sustained systems of state security; enabled practices of colonial rule; perpetuated racist and gendered forms of identification and classification; regulated and policed migration; shaped the eugenically inflected medicalization of disability and sexuality; and contained dissent. While surveillance is thus bound up with complex relations of power, it is also contested. Emerging from the book is a sense of how state actors understood and legitimized their own surveillance practices, as well as how these practices have been implemented in different times and places. At the same time, contributors explore the myriad ways in which these systems of surveillance have been resisted, challenged, and subverted.

Lyndsay Campbell, Ted McCoy and Mélanie Méthot, eds., Canada's Legal Past: Looking Forward, Looking Back (Calgary: University of Calgary Press, forthcoming 2020).

Canada's Legal Past: Looking Forward, Looking Back is a collection of essays on Canadian legal history written with an eye to exploring Canada's fascinating legal past for a wide range of readers, especially those who are new to the field. The topics range from a story of a fishing vessel that became the subject of an extraordinarily long diplomatic dispute with the United States to the peculiar experiences of young Northwest Mounted Police constables who found themselves subjected to an odd mixture of police discipline and criminal procedure. The authors explicitly discuss their sources and methodologies, while several chapters are devoted exclusively to particular kinds of sources and how they can be used: provincial archival records that suggest how people used Quebec courts when their relatives challenged their family honour; newspaper records that disclose the details of bigamy cases; penitentiary records that reveal details of society's most marginal people. Canada's Legal Past: Looking Forward, Looking Back will serve a wide range of readers interested in Canadian legal history.
